

Report Name: Top 200 Companies with pending demat requests as on &lt;Month End&gt;

This report indicates the top 200 companies in terms of pending dematerialization request as on given date.

Indicators which are not directly related to the report but explained in the very context of the said reports.

a) Depository:

A Depository refers to a place or entity that holds financial securities in a dematerialized form. A bank, organization, or any institution holding and assisting in security trading is referred to as a depository. Depository accounts hold securities in the same way that bank accounts hold funds.

b) Demat account:

Demat account is used to hold the shares and securities of publicly traded companies in an electronic form. With a Demat account, you can hold a wide variety of investments such as bonds, equity shares, government securities, mutual funds, and exchange traded funds. Similar to a bank account, a Demat account is either credited or debited each time you buy or sell shares of a company.

c) Securities: A security is a financial instrument, typically any financial asset that can be traded

This term broadly covers all traded financial assets and breaks such assets down into three primary categories:

1. Equity securities – which includes stocks
2. Debt securities – which includes bonds and banknotes
3. Derivatives – which includes options and futures

Dematerialisation :

This is a process of converting the physical shares certificate into an electronic form. An investor will have to open a demat account with the Depository Participant and then request for dematerialisation of share certificate so that the dematerialised holding can be credited in to the demat account.
